

Speaker profile for Einar Risvik, Dr. agric, M.Sc.

Research Director since 1995 for Nofima Food, previous Matforsk, Norwegian Food Research Institute. The position is responsible for strategic research for the whole food area.

Adjunct Professor in Meal Science at the University of Uppsala, Sweden from 1997 to 2003.

The research area is Sensory Science, with 40+ refereed publications, editor and contributor to several books and referee for several journals.

Einar is a sought after speaker at scientific and popular scientific meetings and has had a column in Norwegian breakfast TV on consumer information from food science to the general public.

Einar has participated in EU research activities since 1990, to periods as coordinator and several times as evaluator and help in writing of applications. He is a member of several International Advisory boards for evaluation of national research programmes and Chairman for the steering committee for the programme New Nordic Food, on behalf of the Nordic Ministers Council.